The United States will never be rid of the 'stain of disgrace' for failing to get to the bottom of President John Kennedy's assassination, the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia said Tuesday. It said the killing was part of a CIA plot.

Two-thirds of the American population do not believe the Warren Commission investigation that concluded Kennedy was shot by a lone assassin in Dallas 20 years ago, the evening newspaper said.

The article said 'hundreds of facts and proofs' have been found to confirm the assassination was a CIA plot.

'The stain of disgrace will forever remain the family coat of arms of American capitalism once the ruling, corrupt class has neither the wish nor the determination to face the truth,' Izvestia said. 'More so to put in the dock the terrorists who are still at large and those who paid them for the deadly crossfire.'

The newspaper hailed Kennedy as the first U.S. leader to recognize the necessity of arms negotiations.

'Kennedy was the first U.S. president to realize, and publicly recognize, in the absence of prospects in the arms race and the need to look for ways toward security through arms limitations and talks,' said the article written by Sergei Losev and Vitaly Petrusenko.
